

Client: Rogue Valley Country Club

Challenge:

Rogue Valley Country Club located in Medford, Oregon contacted All Noise Control to solve a problem they knew we could them resolve. To solve their specific noise control problem, they needed a strong sound absorbing product with elegant appearance to prevent reverberation and echoing while preserving the luxury environment they are known for. Rogue Valley Country Club is highly-sought out facility that features a world-renown golf course, restaurant and meeting halls used for conferences and weddings booked years in advance.

Goal:

The main goal was for the experts at All Noise Control to provide a customized recommendation for a product that was sound absorbent enough to block the unwanted noise while preserving the aesthetics of the facility. Wall Panels were the answer.

Soundproofing Wall Panels provide both an acoustical and aesthetic solution with their strong sound absorbing performance, durability, and elegant appearance. Wall panels can be used for sound reduction and reverberation control and are available in a wide variety of sizes, shapes, and colors. The raw acoustical panels can be wrapped with acoustically transparent fabric to create attractive wall treatments that absorb excessive amounts of sound. This adaptability is highly prized by wedding planners and conference organizers to provide a unique environment for their events. Acoustical fabric wrapped wall panels can be backed with a noise barrier to create sound panels that both absorb sound, preventing it from bouncing back into a room while preventing it from penetrating through walls, ensuring that sound stays in the room it was intended for. This creates a warm listening environment for guests and ensures privacy for the high-end clients Rogue Valley Country Club attracts.

Solution:

Rogue Valley Country Club purchased all of the products All Noise Control recommended and they were intrigued with the strategic industry information that our experts provided.

Success:

Our Client, Rogue Valley Country Club is delighted with the results produced by the installation of the Acoustical Wall Panels we recommended. They have a peaceful room where they are sure that they noise will not go through to other areas and, further, that noise from other rooms will be blocked with the sound barrier within the fabric, providing the intimate private environment their clientele demands.
