"Google's dynamic open offices are designed to inspire creativity, but they also created significant acoustic challenges. Multiple teams working simultaneously, combined with reflective surfaces and high ceilings, led to high ambient noise levels that made it difficult to concentrate. We partnered with All Noise Control to implement layered acoustic ceiling baffles customized to our spaces. The difference was dramatic: ambient noise dropped by 30–45%, speech became much clearer, and employees found it easier to focus on their work.

The baffles were carefully designed to match our colorful interior aesthetics, ensuring the solution didn't detract from our creative office vibe. Installation was smooth and minimally disruptive, and the modular setup allows us to adapt as our office needs evolve. Overall, this acoustic solution has enhanced productivity, collaboration, and employee satisfaction, proving that effective noise control can coexist with vibrant, open-office design."
